

John R. Miller

John R. Miller is the Director for International Business Development for Raytheon Company in Washington, DC. He is responsible for programs in the countries of Southern and Central Europe, including Turkey, and is also Country Manager for Israel.

Mr. Miller joined Raytheon Company in 1998, following a distinguished career in the United States Army. Commissioned through ROTC, he held leadership assignments in the 6th Armored Cavalry Regiment and saw service in Vietnam. He served successfully in command at the battalion and brigade levels. A Foreign Area Officer for Europe, he was a Division Chief on the Army Staff in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, DAMO-SS, and on the Joint Staff in Regional Negotiations, J-5. He was also a member of the U.S. Delegation to the Conventional Arms Control Talks in Vienna, Austria, and later served as Defense Attaché for Slovakia, Slovenia, and Austria.

A graduate of Washington and Lee University, Mr. Miller returned to serve as Assistant Professor of Military Science following receipt of a Master's Degree from the University of Georgia. He is also a graduate of the Austrian National Defense College, the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, the U.S. Army War College and the Advanced Management Program's Center for Creative Leadership. Among his military decorations are five awards of the Legion of Merit and numerous foreign awards including the Honor Medal in Silver from Austria and the Peacekeeping Medal from Slovakia.

In addition to his professional accomplishments, Mr. Miller serves on the American Turkish Council Executive Committee, the German-American Business Council, the US-Spain Council, and is a member of the Association of the United States Army, the Retired Officers Association, Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Alpha Theta.